- amended the Administrative Expenses Act of 1946 by authorizing bose leave travel for an employee and his immediate family and by authorizing the advance transportation of dependents under cartain circumstances. Buch advance transportation to the United States at Government expense is authorized 'shen the employee has acquired eligibility for such transportation or when the public interest requires the return of the immediate family for compaliting personal reasons of a humanitarian or compassionate nature. . Or obligation imposed by authority or circumstances over which the individual has no control.
- 2. The act further provides that if an employee returns his immediate family to the United States at his own expense (that is, under circumstances where the foregoing provision does not apply) that the Government "shall reimburse him for proper transportation expenses at such time as he acquires eligibility therefore."
- of the Rudget Circular Bo. A-b. dated 2 May 1955. This circular provides, in Section 29: "In accordance with regulations prescribed by the head of the department concurred, an exployer who, at his own expense . . on or after August 31, 1956, returns his issediate family and his household goods and personal effects, or any part thereof, to the continental United States, its territories, or possessions prior to his return thereto shall, at such time as the employee becomes eligible for return at Government expense, be reinhanced for the proper expenses which had previously paid. Such expenses will be reinhanced by the Covernment not in excess of one time during each agreed-upon pariod of service and shall be subject to the Standardized Government Francel Regulations."
- 4. On 12 July 1936, I consulted the Index Digest Section of the General Accounting Office and obtained a reference to all Comptroller Generals Decisions so far rendered under Public Law 737. There are seven such decisions, two of which (see paragraph 5) bear on the question of savance return of dependents.

- 5. 35 Comp. Gen. 101, 24 August 1955, interprets Public Law 737 and Bureau of the Budget Circular A-4 to meen that if an employee has completed his tour his family is authorized to return to the United States whether or not the employee does so. They cannot again return to the post at Covernment expense, however, until the employee signs a new oversees tour agreement and actually takes home leave. If he wishes to, he may return them to the post at his own expense and will be reimbursed therefor when he has taken home leave himself. This view is further approved in (unpublished) B-127528, 9 May 1956, aithough the decision turns on a different point.
- 6. The prior Agency practice has been to require the employed actually to travel before he is entitled to reimbursement for prior advance travel of his dependents at his personal expense. Apparently this is a more stringent rule than we need apply. It is suggested that policy consideration be given to relaxing the Agency rule and conforming it with that of other Government departments under Public Law 737.
